GeminiTech Lands $10 Million United States Army Contract

WAIPAHU, Hawaii, (May 11, 2007) – GeminiTech, a technology solutions company, today announced it is the first Hawaii-based company ever to secure the Ft. Shafter BPA, a five-year, $10 million contract with the United States Army. Under the contract, GeminiTech will provide the U.S. Army's 25th Infantry Division with a full line of technology solutions ranging from storage, servers, and networking solutions to notebooks, desktops, printers and handheld devices.

The contract bundles GSA schedule products and services with open market items to create a complete technology solution that supports all aspects of the 25th Infantry Division's participation in the ongoing war on terror. Specifically, the technology is being implemented to support the division's combat operations during its second rotation in Iraq. GeminiTech credits the contract win to the support and training provided by HP PartnerONE, a flagship HP program designed to help HP's partner community generate new business and increase profitability, along with GeminiTech's high level of local service and technology expertise.

"This is one of the proudest moments in GeminiTech company history," said Karen James, founder and principal of GeminiTech. "We started as a home-based business 11 years ago, and ever since that time, HP has supported our dedication to providing customers with excellence in customer service and technology implementation. With HP as our partner, GeminiTech was chosen over some of the best value added resellers in the nation for this contract, and we look forward to supporting the United States Army's war on terror with excellence."

"HP is committed to driving growth in the federal market with its value added partners and is delighted with the GeminiTech success." said Mike Humke, Vice President Public Sector Sales, Solution Partners Organization – Americas, HP. "The combination of GeminiTech's public sector experience and local presence along with HP's broad portfolio of technology solutions came together to deliver the solutions the Army was looking to help them improve their IT services while at the same controlling their costs in the process."
